Queer Work at Echo.

What may be termed a failure under peculiar circumstances took place at Echo last week. Some months ago Fletcher and Proctor daily came to this place with a second-hand stock of merchandise from some point in Illinois. They were quite anxious to sell but as appearances were against their being the legitimate owners no one would buy. Finally they went out to Echo and made some arrangement with Judge H. T. Landrum and began conducting business as "H. T. Landrum & Co." A week or two ago a load of floor was brought at Northwest City and a St. Louis check given in payment which came back protested; about the same time the brothers were arrested for selling "rock and rye," a well known cough(?) mixture. To their attorney they gave another check to secure him for going on their temporary bond, or for legal services. This also turned up dishonored. On a previous occasion they borrowed several hundred dollars from Freeman Nidifer, getting Bill Ballard and Ben Mattheeson on the note. As matters were getting a little warm the Dailies turned what few goods there were in the store over to their endorsees, took the train Monday last week and at Fairland and have not since been seen. It is learned they were conducting an Alliance store somewhere in Illinois and the belief they ran the goods out of the country and brought them here. Mrs. Fletcher Daily is still at Echo; she says one of the brothers was quietly arrested in this city and taken back to the place from whence they came; that the people rose up and would have mobbed him but his attorney got him aside on a pretext of advising with him, and told him to run, which advice he took.
